The Coach is a guide and a mentor to support the client to implement positive change. The coach is not to provide health care, medical services, prescribe medications, diagnose or treat any condition or disease. The coach is not a medical doctor.

The client must not discontinue prescribed medications without consulting their doctor.

The client takes full responsibility for their own health and well-being and all the decisions made whilst working with and after working with the coach.

The client cannot claim any sums of money, make allegations or claims against the coach which arise from the clients past, future or current coaching sessions.

Please make contact with Remedy Coaching for any further information regarding terms and conditions.
